ARRIVAL OF EAST TENNESSEANS.—A party of sixty loyal East Tennesseans, arrived in Louisville on Tuesday, from their homes, having been forced away through fear of the application of the amended conscription act, exempts, no citizens between the ages of fourteen and fifty-five. Indeed, no one who is able to carry a gun is overlooked, even though they may have a legal claim to exemption. These gentlemen are from the vicinity of Knoxville, and have suffered much for the sake of loyalty. A state of affairs deplorable beyond description, they say, exists in that portion of Tennessee.

ALL RIGHT.—General John M'Neil, whose surrender to the rebel authorities for the purpose of being hung has been demanded by Jeff. Davis, made his appearance, a few days since, in the Missouri House of Representatives, and was received with marked respect by that Body. The House took a recess for ten minutes, and Gen. M'Neil was invited to the Speaker's stand, and requested to address the representatives, which he did.

☞ "Why do you drive such a miserable looking carcass as that?" Why don't you put a heavier coat of flesh on him?", said a traveller to an Irish car driver.

"Och, an' sure," quoth Paddy, "an' it's a heavier coat of flesh ye'll be after sayin'—be the powers, the poor baste can hardly carry what little there is on him now."

☞ Sidney Smith used to say that a hospitable friend of his in the Highlands could always tell the state of the weather by the quantity of whiskey drank during the day in his house, averring that the glass went up in the hand as the mercury went down in the thermometer in the hall.

COMPROMISE.

Compromise! who dares to speak it
On the nation's hallowed day,
When the air with thunder echoes,
And the rocket-lightnings play?
Compromise! while on the dial
Liberty goes ages back—
Scourged, and bound, for our denial,
Firmer to the despot's rack?

Compromise! while angels tremble
As we falter in the race!
Cringe, and flatter, and dissemble!
We! who hold such royal place?
Compromise! it suits the craven!
Has our valor stooped so low?
Have we lost our ancient ardor
Face to face to meet the foe?

Compromise is Treason sally,
Traitors' refuge, cowards' raid;
All the wrongs that Justice suffers
Flourish in its deadly shade.
Compromise is base undoing
Of the deeds our fathers wrought;
They, for Right and Freedom suing—
We, disdaining what they bought.

No! By the Mayflower's peril
On the wild and wintry sea;
By the Pilgrim's prayer ascending,
As he knelt with reverent knee;
By the fairest day of summer,
When the tried, the true, the brave,
Name, and life, and sacred honor
To the Roll of Freedom gave;

By the tears, the march, the battle,
Where the noble, fearless died—
Wild around the cannon's rattle,
Waiting angels at their side:
By our children's golden future,
By our father's stainless shield,
That which God and heroes left us,
We will never, never yield!

Hear it! ye who sit in council,
We, the People, tell you so!
Will you venture "Yes" to whisper,
When the millions thunder "No?"
Will you sell the nation's birthright,
Heritage of toil and pain,
While a cry of shame and vengeance
Rings from Oregon to Maine?

Compromise—then Separation—
Such the order of the two:
Who admits the first temptation,
Has the second's work to do.
Compromise—the sultry silence!
Separation—whirlwind power!
For a moment's baleful quiet,
Will you risk that rending hour?

Who would sail the Mississippi?
Who the mountain ranges hold?
Win Ohio's fertile borders?
Sacramento's sands of gold?
Whose would be our banner's glory!
Who the eagle's flight would claim?
Whose our old illustrious story,
Patriot graves, and fields of fame?

Compromise—we scorn the offer!
Separation—we defy!
"Firm and free and one forever!"
Thus the people make reply.
"Death to every form of Treason,
In the Senate, on the field!"
While the chorus swells and echoes
"WE WILL NEVER, NEVER YIELD!"

From Kentuky.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 18.—Special to the Commercial, from Frankfort, Ky., says that the rebels assembled here to day, for the ostensible purpose of making nominations for the August election. The House of Representatives, by a decided vote, having refused the use of the Hall, they rented the Theater. Delegates from forty counties were present. David Merriweather was elected Chairman. On taking the chair, he said he hoped the convention would do nothing but that which good, loyal citizens should do. Meantime a regiment of soldiers, with fixed bayonets, formed in front of the Theater, when a call of the counties was made. Colonel Gilbert then caused to be read the following order: Reliable information having been received at these headquarters that a number of rebel spies and emissaries are in this city, it is ordered that all persons now here not residents, or members of the Legislature, or officers of the State or Government, forthwith leave their names at these headquarters, accompanied with satisfactory references as to their loyalty to the Government.

Col. Gilbert took the stand and said, to facilitate the proceedings and save the Convention trouble, he, with his Adjutant, would take the names of the delegates as they were called.—He said: There are those here whom we know to be rebels of the worst kind. Under the disguised name of Democrats you have assembled here with the hope to perfect your designs, but it will not do. Repudiated by the Legislature, who have refused you the use of their hall, and by Democratic newspapers scorned and disowned, there is no use of your holding conventions. In Kentucky none but men of undoubted loyalty to the Government will be allowed to run for any office. Such meetings as this you shall not hold within the limits of my command, and to avoid trouble, you will disperse to your homes, and in future desist from all such attempts to precipitate civil war upon your State.

After Col. Gilbert had spoken, an attempt was made to offer resolutions, which were respectfully declined by Col Gilbert.

The body then adjourned. There was some excitement in the city but no noise.

Message from the Governor---Governmental Arrests.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth, presented a message from the Governor to the Senate and House of Representatives which was read, as follows:

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, Feb. 12, '63.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

GENTLEMEN:—I desire to call your attention to a subject of moment.

When the present infamous and God condemned rebellion broke out, Congress was not in session, and the occurrence of such a state of things not having been foreseen in former times, no adequate legislation had been had to meet it. At the same time the life of the country being at stake, it appeared necessary that some means should be taken to control the small band of traitors in the loyal States, so as to prevent them from machinations which might be injurious, if not fatal to the national cause. Under these circumstances the General Government resorted to the system of military arrests of dangerous persons, and having thus commenced acting under it, have continued (at long intervals in this State) to pursue it. The Government of the United States acts directly on individuals, and the State Executive has no authority or means to interfere with arrests of citizens of the United States made under the authority of that Government.

Every citizen of Pennsylvania is also a citizen of the United States and owes allegiance to them, as well as (subject to the provisions of the Constitution of the United States) he owes it to Pennsylvania. If he be unlawfully deprived of his liberty, his only redress is to be had at the hands of the judiciary. In such times as the present it is more than ever necessary to pursue regularity in official action. Great efforts have been and are probably still being made by persons blinded or ill disposed to throw us into a state of revolution—that is to say, to create anarchy and confusion—and ultimately to bring about the destruction of life and property among us. Any irregular, much more illegal, interference by your Executive, with matters which by the Constitution are not entrusted to his cognizance, and especially any such interference with the action of the Executive of the United States or with the functions of the Judiciary, would, be in the existing crisis emphatically dangerous; it would have a direct revolutionary tendency; in fact it would be to commence a revolution. The courts of justice are open, and no doubt all personal wrongs can be properly redressed in due course of law.

I do not know how many arrests of the kind hereinbefore referred to have been made in Pennsylvania, as I have at no time been privy to the making of them, but I believe they have been few. I was under the impression that there would be no necessity for more of them, but recent events having shown that this impression was erroneous, I deem it my duty now to invite your attention to the subject.

The contest in which we are engaged is one for the preservation of our own liberty and welfare. The traitors at the south hate the great body of our people who are loyal, and hate and bitterly despise the few who are ready for submission. Unless the rebellion be effectually suppressed we must lose our price of country, the larger portion of our territory, and the elements not only of greatness, but of prosperity and even of security to life, liberty and property. Notwithstanding all this, it is, I fear, an undoubted truth that a few wretches among us, false to all our true and loyal traditions—false to the memory of their fathers and to the rights of their children—false to the country which has given them birth and protected them—only stopping short of the technical offence of treason—in the very madness of mischief, are actively plotting to betray us—to poison and mislead the minds of our people by treacherous misrepresentations, and to aid and comfort the rebels that our fate may be either to abandon the free north and become hangers-on of a government founded in treachery, fraud and insane ambition; or at least, to dissolve the Union under which we have prospered, and to break this fair and glorious country into fragments which will be cursed by perpetual discords at home, and by the contempt and ill usage of foreign nations, from which we shall then be too weak to vindicate ourselves.

That such offences should be duly punished, no good citizen can doubt—and that proper legislation by Congress is required for that purpose can be as little doubted. Whether such legislation should include a suspension of the writ of habeas corpus in any, and what part of the country, is a question which belongs exclusively to the legislative authorities of the United States, who under the Constitution have the right to determine it.—That great writ ought not to be suspended, unless to the wisdom of Congress, the present necessity shall appear to be urgent.

I therefore recommend the passage of a joint resolution earnestly requesting that Congress shall forthwith pass laws defining and punishing offences of the class above referred to, and providing for the fair and speedy trial by an impartial jury of persons charged with such offences, in the loyal and undisturbed States, so that the guilty may justly suffer and the innocent relieved.

A. G. CURTIN.

How Gen Hooker got into the Service.

We find the following interesting story about General Hooker in the Chicago Tribune:

"When the war broke out, General Hooker, then in California, came post-haste to Washington to offer his services to the government. General Scott was at the head of the militia ry affairs of the country; and between that old gentleman and General Hooker was a feud dating back to the Mexican war; hence, as everything relating to the army was referred to Gen. Scott, Hooker was suffered to apply in vain for even a regimental command. Disgusted and mad, he made preparations to return to the Pacific coast, and was about to start, when the first battle of Bull Run was fought. There was nothing in that to encourage; so he went up to the White House, as the last thing before leaving, to call on the President, whom he had never seen. He was introduced by some mistake of his friend as Captain Hooker, and the following was the conversation that ensued:

"Hooker:—Mr. President, I was introduced to you as Captain Hooker. I am or was Lieutenant Colonel Hooker of the regular army. When this war began, I was at home in California, and hastened to make a tender of my services to the Government; but my relation to General Scott or some other impediment stands in the way, and I see no chance of making my military knowledge and experience useful. I am about to return, but before going I was anxious to pay my respects to you, and to express my wishes for your personal welfare and for your success in putting down this infernal rebellion. And I want, while I am at it, to say one thing more; I was at Bull Run the other day, Mr. President, and it is no vanity or boasting in me to say that I am a ——— sight better general than you, sir, had on that field!"

"The President, in repeating this speech, says that he looked at the speaker to see what manner of a man he was who made such a boast. His eye was steady and clear, his manner not half so confident as his words, and altogether he had the air of a man of sense and intelligence who thoroughly believed in himself and who would not try to make his words good. I was impressed with him, and rising out of my chair walked up to him, and putting my hand on his shoulder said, 'Colonel, not Lieutenant Colonel Hooker, stay. I have use for you, and a regiment for you to command.'

"He did stay. The promised reg't was put under his orders, and from it he was soon promoted to a brigade, and thence to a Major General's place in command of a division.

"'In every position in which he has been put,' says Mr. Lincoln, 'Gen. Hooker has equaled the expectations which his self-confidence excited.' As a Colonel, as Brigadier and a Major General he has done exceedingly well, and should he ever be called to command this army, I have no doubt he would acquit himself as gallantly as any man in the country.

"That's the way that Gen. Hooker got into the service. In Washington, Mr. Lincoln's partiality for him is no secret. When it was determined to remove M'Clellan, the head of the Fitz John Porter gang, the question of successorship was both important and embarrassing. The President's inclinations and preference pointed to "Fighting Joe," as the man; and he yielded them to the representations of Gen Halleck and others with great reluctance.

The Nashville Union thus forcibly and truly discourses on the sham unanimity of the South in favor of the Slaveholders' Rebellion:

"The Louisville Journal says that the Southern people were not Disunionists. We never said the contrary, and we go still further, and affirm our belief that the Southern people are not to-day Disunionists. If the Conscription law, enforced by Morgan, Forrest, Wade, and hundreds of other guerrila chiefs, with armed bands of desperadoes, had not recruited the Rebel armies; if a military tyranny, more terrible than Austrian despotism, did not stamp out the first symptoms of resistance; if it were not high treason to hinder the circulation of Confederate notes; if the power of a wealthy and almost unanimously consolidated slaveholding minority were broken, a large majority of the citizens of the South would to-day be for the Union. The fear of the dungeon, the halter, and the sword have silenced the voice of Southern loyalty."

☞ Gen. Hooker has ordered that two furloughs shall be granted to every hundred men in regiments and batteries, two leaves of absence to line officers and, one to field officers, each to have ten days, except in cases where they belong or desire to go to more distant States. No field officer to be granted leave except when all are on duty.

[From the Journals of Congress 1777].

Arbitrary Arrests in the time of the Revolution.

Whereas, The States of Pennsylvania and Delaware are threatened with an immediate invasion from a powerful army, who have already landed at the head of Chesapeake bay: And whereas, principles of policy and self-preservation require that all persons who may reasonably be suspected of aiding or abetting the cause of the enemy may be prevented from pursuing measures injurious to the public weal:

Resolved, That the Executive authorities of the States of Pennsylvania and Delaware be requested to cause all persons within their respective States notoriously disaffected forthwith to be apprehended, disarmed, and secured, till such time as their respective States think they may be released without injury to the common cause.

Resolved, That it be recommended to the Supreme Executive Council of the State of Pennsylvania to cause a diligent search to be made in the houses of the inhabitants of the city of Philadelphia who have not manifested their attachment to the American cause, for fire-arms, swords and bayonets; that the owners of the arms so found be paid for them at an appraised value, and that they be delivered to such of the militia of the State of Pennsylvania who are at present unarmed, and have been called into the field.

On the above preamble and resolutions, Mr. Fisher, in his admirable work on The Trial of the Constitution, makes these remarks:

A cause occurred in Philadelphia in 1777. Some twenty gentlemen of high respectability, were arrested by order of the Supreme Executive Council of this State, at the instance of Congress, banished to a town in Virginia, and there detained. They were not treated as criminals, but with consideration and kindness. Those who chose to declare their allegiance to the Government were released, and all were permitted to return to their homes when it was thought they could be no longer dangerous.

These arrests were made with the knowledge and approbation of Washington. A writ of habeas corpus was issued at the instance of the prisoner, but it was disregarded by the officer in charge of them, and soon afterwards, September 19th, 1777, the Legislature passed a bill indemnifying the Executive Council, and suspending the writ of habeas corpus.

Gen. Rouseau at Lancaster.

That gallant Kentuckian, General Rousseau [illegible] at Lancaster, Pa. a short time ago, and made the following patriotic remarks to an immense crowd:

"I am not a politician, and never expect to be. Before the war began I was a lawyer, and since I have been a soldier. All I have ever asked has been for men and means to put down this rebellion. My political creed is but a minute long. I am for the government of my fathers and for the friends of that government, and I am against the enemies of that government and all their friends, both North and South. He called on the people that they be so united as not to cripple the efforts of the soldiers in the field. No matter what your political predilections may be, unite to save the country, and after that settle questions of policy. Let not your differences of opinion weaken the arms of the brave men who are fighting that you may be free. In the Army of the Cumberland, in which I have the honor of commanding a division, officers and men know only the cause of their country. All are united in a common work. No dissensions nor jealousies weaken their force. From Gen. Rosecrans, the hero of Corinth and Murfreesboro', down to the humblest private in the ranks, there is an abiding confidence in the efficiency of the command, and faith in the justice of the cause. When they go into battle they have no other purpose than to crush the rebellion and preserve the government. I fear the results of your divisions, yet I will say to those who will raise issues and make complaints—save the old flag and the government of your fathers, and then you can have the offices from now to eternity.

The Immortal Butler.

At the grand reception of this Second Hero of New Orleans, at Boston, the Athens of America, Gen. Butler used the following soldier-like and highly patriotic language:

"But you may ask why I am here, instead of being on the field. To that I have the simple answer, the pawn on the chess board has no right to know when and how he will be moved next by those who have the great game of war in charge. But whenever and wherever the Government may need my services, be it to start to-night or on the morrow—in the direction of south, East or West—there, as a soldier I am bound, and as a patriot I am proud to answer and go.

Gen. Wool on Compromise.

At a banquet given to Gen. Wool at New York, on the 6th inst., in response to a toast to the army and navy, the old veteran made the following remarks:

He was for the whole country, and nothing but the whole country. No compromise, no separation, no line of demarcation; but to preserve that Union inviolate, he was willing to sacrifice all he possessed.

He would give all to preserve the country and restore it to its original condition. What was this nation two years ago? It was a nation commanding the respect of the world, whose flag was respected under every circumstance upon every soil. Where was it now? Broken up by a bitter war between the North and South, which originated through the ambition of a few men. He was the last man who would listen to compromise, and would not hesitate to denounce the man guilty of treason who would suggest it. If the compromisers wanted war, perpetual war, they had but to effect a separation. There was no other way to preserve the Union except by putting down the rebellion; and though his days were few, yet he hoped he might live long enough to see the Union restored. Gen. Wool concluded with a high tribute to the New York State Militia, and said that he was stationed here to attend to the defenses of the Eastern Department, and remarked that he was doing all in his power to put the harbor of New York in perfect state of defense.—[Cheers.

☞ How shall we long you are over that sermon," said the farmer's lady to her husband, as they were riding to the church. "I could write one in half the time. I only want the text." "Oh, if that is all you want," said the parson, "I will furnish that. Take this text from Solomon's: 'It is better to dwell in a corner of the house top than with a brawling woman in a wide house.'" "Do you mean me, sir?" inquires the lady, quickly. "Oh, my good friend," was the grave response, "you will not make a good sermonizer, you are too sensitive for your application."

Winter Grain

It is expansion of the water in the soil by being frozen, that breaks and tears the roots of plants. Keep the soil as dry as possible during the winter, by clearing the drains, opening the dead furrows and we feel seeing that the outlets are free. 'Run a one horse plow through the dead furrows when unfrozen, especially in most cases. Both grain will be destroyed, but this seldom comes to much in the dead furrows, while the better draining of the rest of the field will largely increase the produce and quality.

The remedy is safe and simple, and should be tried whenever occasion requires.

☞ A resolution has been introduced in the New Jersey Legislature, stating that the appropriation by Congress of $15,000,000 to purchase the freedom of slaves in Missouri, will not be recognized as legal by the people of New Jersey, and will be void in equity and law; and that New Jersey will not be responsible for any portion of the debt.

Pennsylvania Reserve.

We remember this noble band, composed of choice sons of our favorite State, with feelings of joy and sorrow, pride and regret. In referring to them as a body, we do not forget the thousands representing us as a good loyal member of the great family of States, to whom the meed of praise is equally due, although attached to other divisions. Where are Col. Wilson and Dr. Minis, with whom we have whiled away many a pleasant hour?—Where are Cols. Black, Rippey and a host of others.

"Their graves are there, they may be seen;"

and whether towering monuments of purest marble, or the lonely twig of weeping willow mark their resting place, a voice shall come up from the future, "These are martyrs for liberty." They died in a glorious cause.

Our attention was more particularly directed, however, to the organization, training and perfecting of the Reserves under Gen. McCall. Our friends, neighbors, and relatives, were connected therewith. Three companies from our county were attached thereto, commanded respectively by Captains, Adams, Cuthbertson and Miller. Two of said commanders have returned to their homes, bearing upon their person marks of their bravery and noble deeds; honorable scars are their credentials, inflicted by the foeman's steel. The other sleeps that dreamless sleep from which the clash of resounding arms cannot awake him, in his lowly grave on the Peninsula. Gen. Jackson, with Captains, Lieutenants and hundreds of privates, have gone down also to fill soldiers' graves. We have stood silently by and witnessed the departure of some of these others equally as well known are unheard of and only noticed by him to whom we are commanded to say "thy will be done".

We observe that the "Reserve" or the little squad of them now remaining, through the kindness of the War Department, in response to this earnest, sympathetic request of Gov. Curtin, will now be assigned to duty less laborious than heretofore, affording them time to recruit their thinned ranks, but this can scarcely be expected to go rapidly on; for oh, how many families have been left in sad bereavement, the dark habiliments of morning meet the eye everywhere, indicating the loss of a friend. But we look beyond these scenes of sadness to a brighter future in which we may read inscribed upon the Star Spangled Banner in letters of enduring purity, "all honor to the worthy dead of the Pennsylvania Reserves."

Is it not strange when we see how many have fallen upon the battle field in defence of our country and the sadness and sorrow with which this terrible war has filled our once happy land, that men are to be found who talk about compromise and disunion?

Is it not strange to see men throwing every obstacle in the way of the Administration in its efforts to put down the rebellion? Surely these men will cease to thus insult our brave soldiers on the field, and the friends of those who have died for their country. We trust they have not fought and died in vain, but that our Government may be speedily restored and peace and prosperity prevail throughout the whole land.

AT HOME.—Capt. James Darragh, of Co. I, 140th Reg. P. V., arrived at his home on last Thursday, on furlough. The Captain is well and favorably known to all the citizens of our county. He represents the health of his company, and that of the regiment generally, as being good. Judging from his appearance, the Captain has certainly enjoyed a good degree of health himself. He returns in a few days to his place in the regiment. Should the fates of war call the 140th into an engagement, no doubt Co. I, under their present brave leader, will give a good account of themselves. Success to the Captain, his company, the regiment, and the cause in which they are engaged.

Captain Jos. M. Reed, of Co., F. 10th Pa. Reserves, also arrived at home on Monday on a short furlough. Capt. Reed looks well, and is as "funny" as ever. Soldiering appears to agree with him. This is, we believe, the first time he has been from his company a single day since it left Camp Wright, nearly twenty months ago. Welcome home, Captain.

"Charming Simplicity."

Under the above caption the Pittsburg Post condescends to indulge in a witty and sarcastic article in regard to the editorial Salutatory in the Argus of the 11th inst.

The Post is pleased to be very patronising, and speaks of our simplicity, using all that sort of commonplace twattle, which we suppose is only common to great men, and the editors of great and influential journals, when speaking of their inferiors. Indeed, we have been so much overwhelmed by this notice, from such a great paper, that our modesty has been severely put to the test, and we can scarce tell which strikes us as the most admirable—the lofty and trenchant manner in which this redoubtable Knight of the Quill disposes of such small fry as the President, Maj. Gen. Butler, Col. Forney and others, or the rich, though quiet, vein of humor that pervades the whole of this remarkable article. None of your common, one-horse county editors is he of the Post, but a bold, defiant genius, smiling in the plenitude of his might, as he tears the message of the President to tatters with one paragraph, annihilates Butler with another, and with a single word demolishes a whole host of men, whom, "rural we were going to say, verdant, but we won't," editors have been in the habit of looking upon heretofore as of some importance.

It may then be supposed that it was not without great trepidation that we ventured to read the article in the Post, censuring the editor of the Argus for the high crime of "soaring above mere party, (we use the elegant phraseology of the Post) and announcing our intention of co-operating with such patriotic Democrats as Butler, Hickman and Dickinson." For this idea of soaring above mere party, is something perfectly unaccountable to him of the Post. It is quite beyond the conception of this urbane editor, that any man should for a moment seriously entertain such an idea. In his view, to vary one iota from the the behests of a man's party, is simply an utter impossibility. Not to obey every whim or humor of the particular clique or cabal to which he belongs, is the highest crime known to his moral perceptions. To such men, Party is the "all in all"—the summum bonum for which every thing else should be given up. The one thing entirely and expressly needful, for which honor, honesty, principle, consistency, may be freely sacrificed, and to which all the common virtues should be made subservient.

We think now that we can see the look of ineffable disdain with which this great Ajax of Democracy looks down upon the possession of all such qualities as patriotism, honesty, truth, virtue. Stuff! nonsense!! he exclaims, as he leans himself back in his sanctum, while a smile of derision breaks over his intelligent face. Who ever heard of any one but a "greeny" or a spooney leaving his party? Tut! tut! the man who prates about political honesty must be surely demented! This we conceive to be the manner in which the editor of the Post looks upon that which other men have chosen to call independence. The idea of a man free from party trammels, appears to him to be the merest absurdity. Perhaps this is a peculiarity incident to all great men, at least to such great men as the prospective Surveyor General of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

We do not feel at all like denouncing the Post as disloyal, on account of the malicious flings at the government with which its columns abound, and with which the article before us is so fully interspersed. We do not regard the paper as either loyal or disloyal. It cares no more for Jeff. Davis and the Southern Confederacy than it does for the welfare of the Union. We do not believe the editor really sympathises at all with Southern Rebels, nor for that matter that he sympathises with anything whatever under the sun, save, and except always, his beloved Democratic party. For that everything must be done. So when a few weeks since "the party" had taken to talking treason we find the Post, filled with disloyal extracts. The Party has of late begun to try to embarrass the government, and lo! forthwith our great man does the same. Little more than a year ago "the Party" thought it expedient to be very loyal, outrageously loyal, so to speak, and all will recollect how very particularly, and even exeruciatingly, loyal and patriotic the Post became. The Stars and Stripes were flung to the breeze, our banners hung upon the outer wall, traitors denounced in the most bitter terms, war songs and patriotic odes crowding its columns; everything for the war, the Union and the suppression of the rebellion. There was, then, no drawing it mild on Jeff, and piling it heavy on old Abe. There was no furious raging at the confinement of the Mahoneys, and other dilapidated editors, and "roaring gently as a sucking dove" at rebel atrocities Anon, "the Party" thought it expedient to sustain the President, and forthwith the Democratic Ajax of Western Pennsylvania, became the peculiar champion of "Old Abe." How it "pitched in" to the Dispatch! How furiously it assailed the Gazette! How unmercifully it upbraided the Chronicle for not sufficiently sustaining the Executive.—For two or three weeks it was claimed by some ardent and enthusiastic admirers of the Barr-onian style of writing, that the Post was the only sound organ that the President had in the Smoky City. The Republican papers were left so far in the lurch by this new "Defender of the faith" that their feeble commendations, cold and unfeeling, compared with the highly wrought panegyrics of this zealous neophyte.

We think, too, we can, yet, recollect the time when Maj. Gen. Butler's name was mentioned with respect by the Post, and the editor would have set him down as wanting in good breeding who should have referred to that oblique-visioned officer as "Ben. Butler." But it now suits the behests of "the Party" that Butler should be ridiculed; that Dickinson should be snubbed; Hickman denounced; and Forney villified and abused. So the Post, very naturally, takes to heaping contumely upon the heads of these devoted men, and substitutes in their stead, as specimens of Simon Pure Democracy, Hon. Clement L. Vallandigham of Ohio, Fernando Wood, Esquire, of New York, and men of that sort. But why multiply examples? Who does not know of the days of Lecomptonism and anti-Lecomptonism, and of the tergiversations of the Post thereon? Who does not remember the pro-Buchanan articles and the anti-Buchanan attitude? Who does not recollect the long haltings over the Cresson movement, and the swayings to and fro upon that memorable occasion? Who does not know of these, and scores of similar instances. Your genuine political charlatan is bound by neither consistency or truth to remain faithful to a single view, after the time has passed when it can be made the basis of Party capital; and the instant "the Party" gives up a dogma or turns its back upon a distinguished member, he falls to denying the one and denouncing the other with as much bitterness as he formerly displayed against the opponents of either.

This style of simulated fervor is, we conceive, one of the characteristics of the conductors of influential daily Democratic papers, and this is precisely wherein the Post is, we think, to be regarded as charmingly simple not rurally verdant.

The Change of Venue Case Again.

Since our last issue this somewhat notorious matter of changing the Venue of place of trial of the case of the Commonwealth vs. Mrs. Barker and others, has been the subject of definite action in the Legislature.

Having before us the proceedings of the Senate on the Bill transferring the trial of the case from Beaver to Washington county, and finding therein the most gross and unscrupulously false statements of the case itself, of the people of Beaver county, and of the course of this paper in regard to the defendants in the case, we feel it to be our duty not to allow these things to pass by unnoticed, nor without proper rebuke to their reckless authors.

The old false story, and now threadbare fabrication of an undue and dangerous excitement and prejudice against the defendants in this county, are reproduced in the Senate by Mr. Connell of Philadelphia, and Mr. Lowry of Erie. The truth is, and it must be known to every intelligent person in the county, that there is not the slightest "excitement" or evidence of prejudice in the county against these unfortunate defendants; nor can we find any disposition existing anywhere to "sacrifice" (to use the sensation language of Mr. Connell) or to do with them on the trial of their case otherwise than would be done in the case of the most humble person in society, who would make no pretensions to "high social position, refinement and delicacy of feeling, and above all known christian character."

Yet Senator Connell carried off by some strange hallucination has become feverishly excited about this case, and in his phrenzy overleaps truth, common sense, and ordinary prudence and propriety. Amongst the many glaring falsehoods which appear in what is reported as his speech in the Senate, we point to those wherein he charges the indictment to be "infamous," that "the relatives and friends of the murdered man (John Ansley) scattered over the country" are "inflaming the minds of all they meet:" that the leading newspaper of the dominant party is denouncing them in language too gross and innendoes too vile to repeat on this floor, stirring up the passions of the community against them;" that "a thousand falsehoods are circulating from mouth to mouth all around them;" and that (closing this part of his silly and false fustian with a grand flourish) "before God, Mr. Chairman, I say they cannot have a trial by an impartial jury in Beaver county!!!"

Now we would ask this excited Senator, who seems to have zeal without knowledge, or anybody else acting with him, if there is anything in the Indictment referred to more than the law requires to define and set forth the offence charged? And if the offence charged be "infamous" does it become "infamous" because it embraces all the persons engaged in the commission of the offence, and did not leave out a portion of the accused to enable them to swear the others through?

It is utterly false that the relatives and friends "of the murdered Ansley are inflaming the minds of any one against the accused;" it is an unmitigated lie to say that this paper ever denounced the accused in gross language or innuendoes, or in any language whatever; and let us say to the infatuated Senator, as well as to that other Senatorial dignitary, Morrow B. Lowry, (of whom hereafter) that they cannot escape exposure of their false positions by saying they cannot repeat the language on the floor of the Senate. That wont do; come out like men, or stand denounced as libellers.

We next notice the Senator from Erie, the pure and immaculate Morrow B. Lowry. This man attempts to follow in the wake as a sort of fail-bearer of Connell, and rants in his usual frothy and senseless style. The reasons given by him for change of Venue are found in his allegations, that sometime ago an Indian "whom was insane" (we use the Senator's own beautiful language) was hung in Butler county for coolly and deliberately murdering a whole family; that his (the Senator's) "senses teach him that prejudice like a whirlwind is in Beaver county;" that "there is a great black storm rising and foaming in the direction of Beaver county;" (prodigious! isn't it?) that "any county that would tolerate the newspaper remarks to which these ladies have been subject must be prejudiced against these defendants;" and that the "Stockings of the ablest men in Beaver county are blue."

In view of this extraordinary display of ignorant impudence, we would ask who this noisy humbug, Lowry, is? and who gave him his Quixotic commission to take care of Beaver county, and to avenge the imaginary wrongs of persons to whom he says he never spoke? Who constituted him newspaper censor and Stocking inspector of Beaver county? When we first heard of him he was a wishy-washy Democrat, of easy political integrity. Getting dissatisfied with his party, or rather satisfied that he could do better, he came into our lines and seems to be there now. He is said to have belonged to a party of out-laws in Erie, who were known as "rippers," on account of their lawless course in ripping or tearing up the railroad at that place to force a break of gauge there, so that passengers would be compelled to change cars, and perhaps leave a few dimes in the town. He professes sympathy with Indians "whom are insane;" and we suppose those insane Indian murderers of the defenceless men, women and children in Minnesota, a few only of whom have been executed, have received from Senator Lowry the most profound and cordial sympathy. But we are constrained to say, as we believe, that if there be

"Any poor Indian, whose untutored mind
Sees God in clouds, or hear him in the wind,"

who has got down to such a moral or mental condition as not to outmeasure Lowry, his case must be truly deplorable.

The men of Beaver county may not wear garments such as "stockings suitable to the exquisite taste of the Senator; but what has he to do with the color or texture of their clothes? We are aware that this cedar-headed Senator wears fancy garments. Whether he uses either stockings or socks at all is supposed to be doubtful.

He rejoices in the display of a white cravat and an everlasting ruffled shirt, or as he calls it a "staked and riddered" shirt, the prominent breast work of which being made out of cheap muslin (before the war) and the balance out of still cheaper.

By reason of his white cravat or muslin neck bandage and other pious indications, he says he was once taken for a preacher and denied access to Girard College (preachers are not allowed there) but he soon swore the gate keeper out of that absurdity.—The Senator is good on a swear; and whilst on the subject, we would ask him what became of a certain Indictment for perjury said to have been found in Erie against a distinguished man of that place? Hadn't the Venue better be changed to Beaver or Butler county?

Without following this matter further at present, we are glad to announce to our readers that both the Senator from this district, Mr. McCandless, and our Representative, Mr. Henry, stood up manfully in defence of truth, and did all they could to prevent the passage of the Bill changing the Venue, which originated in falsehood and misrepresentations, and was passed through the Legislature in the same way, and which will wrongfully cost the tax-payers of the county a large sum of money.

GOV CURTIN.

We see by our Washington papers Gov Curtin has been for some time at at the seat of Government, using his influence for the benefit of the Pennsylvania volunteers. It gives us great pleasure to announce the fact to our readers. Pennsylvania will surely be proud of the zeal and energy displayed by our noble, patriotic and able Governor, in the cause of the Union, from the commencement of this great struggle. Gov. Morgan of New York, Todd of Ohio, Morton of Indiana, Yates of Illinois, by their untiring energy and devoted patriotism have contributed largely to the support of the government; but our noble Governor, in addition to his patriotic efforts to sustain the constituted authorities to put down and crush out this unholy rebellion, has, from the commencement, given much of his time, and labored most assiduously, for the promotion of the interests, the comfort and the rights of the volunteers from this State. From the beginning of the war his attention was directed to the necessary clothing and equipment of the volunteers, which was secured by him; and when in the disastrous campaign on the Peninsula, large numbers of our gallant soldiers were stricken down by disease or wounded in battle, he thought they could be better cared for at home than in distant hospitals. His efforts to have the sick and wounded removed to Pennsylvania, were for a time unsuccessful; but his noble efforts finally prevailed. The government wisely ordered that in future all the soldiers in the army, who were sick or wounded, should be removed to their respective States. His last great effort was to procure an order for the removal of the remnant of the gallant and heroic Pennsylvania Reserves from active service to the defences at Washington, so as to enable the toil-worn veterans who had immortalized themselves by the heroic bravery in every conflict in which the army of the Potomac was engaged, to recruit their strength and numbers. It was an act of justice and humanity for which Pennsylvania is indebted to the exertions of Gov. Curtin.

All the abuse that could be invented by malice and disloyalty have been heaped upon his head; but we can proudly point to his administration and his devotion to his country, and his noble and manly efforts to sustain it in its hour of trouble.

We yet hope to see him rejoice with his country in the final overthrow of all who would oppose our Republican government. We have said this much merely as an act of justice to Governor Curtin, without viewing it politically, and we are satisfied that he will be sustained by every loyal man, and especially by the volunteers.

Harrisburg Correspondence.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 20, 1863.

MR. EDITOR:—Nothing interesting to your people has been done in the Legislature this week, except the passage of "A supplement to An Act to incorporate the New Castle & Beaver Valley Railroad Company." The supplement authorizes the said Company to increase their capital and amount of their indebtedness, and also to make an additional branch road not to exceed thirteen miles. An amendment was added providing that the branch road so constitued shall extend into Beaver county.

Also An Act to change the Venue in a certain case from Beaver county to Washington. This Bill had been passed in another shape, and was vetoed by the Governor. This new Bill, I presume, will have the desired effect of postponing the trial of the parties indefinitely.

The Board of Revenue Commissioners met in the Supreme Court room on the 17th inst., Henry D. Moore State Treasurer presiding. Judge Pomeroy, of Lawrence county, represents your Judicial District. You can rely on having your interests carefully and ably attended to. There are several gentlemen of ability and experience in the Board: Cummings of Philadelphia, Bigham of Allegheny, Hageman of Berks, Calvin of Blair, Heister of Dauphin, and Pomeroy of Lawrence.

A bill to erect a new county out of part of Luzerne has passed both Houses. It is to be submitted to a vote of the people in October next.

There are some signs of increasing loyalty, affected or real, on the part of the Democrats in the Legislature. I have already stated that the would be leaders had been very unfortunate in all their moves so far. They seem to be blind to the teachings of the past. I warn them that nothing can be made to them by their treasonable course. Even should the rebels succeed by the aid and comfort afforded them by Democrats in the North, will they be respected by the South for their treason? Let the history of Arnold answer the question.

This rebellion will be put down. I have faith unfaltering in that great and good Being who has done so much for us in the past. There has been signs of re-action for some weeks past. The leading traitors of the North have heard from the army.—Our brave boys there respect treason at home no more than if it exhibited itself in Dixie. Some poor hacks who control papers have wandered so far into the Wilderness of Treason that it will be impossible to get back when their masters whistle for them.—Mark the prediction, Mr. Editor, some of your now rampant Vallandigham puffing traitors will in less than two years deny that they or any Democrat were ever anything but loyal. But, alas for the traitors; the record is made up their doom is written.

I learn that all the Banks in the Commonwealth, with very few exceptions, have paid their quota of gold, as required by the act of 30th January, 1863. The free Banks were not required to pay any. Others claimed to be specie paying banks, and thus exempt from the operation of the law. But I learn all these have come forward to aid the State, except the Bank of Pittsburg, Bank of Beaver County, Monongahela Bank of Brownsville, Bank of Fayette County, Bank of Delaware County, and Southwark Bank. I learn also that the only suspended Banks, which have not responded are the Bank of Crawford County, and the Farmers' and Drovers' Bank Waynesburg, Greene County.—It has been some days since I obtained this information and some of the Banks named above may have responded. Some of the Banks claiming to be specie paying Banks are represented as mere shaving shops, issuing none of their own paper and dealing in suspended paper as freely as other Banks. Should this be proved when the Attorney General calls upon them, it may go hard with some of them, though they may be able to quote scripture when written to on the subject.

The Revenue bill of Messrs. M'Comb, Thayer and M'Clellan, is now before the Committee of Ways and Means, and may be heard from this session or in some future one. A. B. C.

B. RUSH BRADFORD.—The following paragraph, from the Hammond (Md.) Gazette, indicates that Mr. Bradford, who was delegated by Gov. Curtin to look after the interests of the volunteers from this State, is zealously discharging his duty. The Gazette says:

The Hon. B. R. Bradford, of Pennsylvania, commissioned by Gov. Curtin to look after the interests of the Pennsylvania boys, spent several days with us last week. Actuated solely by benevolent motives, Mr Bradford entered upon his work of love and mercy, and since the commencement of the rebellion has visited nearly all of the general hospitals of the army, rendering invaluable assistance to the soldiers in his quiet, unostentatious way. He promised to use his influence in the abatement of a certain nuisance, which has existed at the Point during the past month, much to the detriment of the interests of the hospital.

—We cannot refrain from adding a word of our own, in commendation of the great service which Mr. Bradford has rendered the sick soldiers in the hospitals in the vicinity. He has been most arduous and untiring in his labors to ameliorate the condition of the sick soldiers. He has watched his interest, where the soldier had no friend to speak for him, and in rendering this service, he has refused all compensation and avoided all display. Such men deserve not only our praise, but they are entitled to our gratitude. —Har. Tel.

☞ We take the following from the Legislative Record, purporting to be a letter written by Abner P. Lacock, of this county:

FREEDOM, Dec. 29.

HON. ANDREW G. CURTIN:—

SIR: I take the liberty of addressing you on behalf of Mrs. Eliza H. Barker, her daughter E. B. Craft, and her two sons, aged respectively twelve and fourteen years against whom a bill was passed by the grand jury, at the last term of the quarter sessions of this county, for concealing an escaped murderer, Eli F. Sheets.

Mrs. Barker is the widow of the late Dr R. B. Barker, of Beaver, a gentleman whose talents and professional ability were of the highest order, and placed him in front rank of his profession. She has resided in the county nearly, if not quite, forty years, beloved and esteemed by all who have known her. Her high social position, her refinement and delicacy of feeling, and above all her known Christian character, utterly preclude the idea that she is guilty of the crime imputed to her.

Her daughter, Mrs. Craft, is a lady of exceedingly delicate sensibilities, she is in very indifferent health, and was absent at the time Sheets escaped, only returning to her mother's residence on the Saturday evening previous to his arrest. Her two little sons, left by the inscrutable hand of Providence in the sole charge of their mother, have been watched over with more than ordinary care and solicitude, and kept away from idle and vicious boys of their own age, and it is very improbable that they could have had any participation in the matter, even as instruments in the hands of others.

The entire family are included in the bill of indictment. They have not a single witness, and the man upon whose word their fate hangs, is the turn-key of the prison, who by his own admission, was bribed to open the door and permit the egress of the murderer, and who doubtless hopes by implicating others, to palliate his own crime and mitigate his punishment. He concealed Sheets for several days and nights in stable and out-houses contiguous to the jail, and as Mrs Barker's house, from its construction and appendages, afforded the most remarkable facilities for the purpose, finally took him there, concealed him in the room of a colored servant girl, and then I suppose coming alarm or discovery, betrayed him to the officers of justice.

This is a plain and concise statement of the facts of the case, and could your excellency have strong presumptive evidence of the innocence of Mrs Barker and her family.

Your obedient servant in their behalf would be a petition as positive as well as clear, to the wise and humane end in view.

Perhaps my name may be familiar to you, as I have been an active partizan in the ranks of the old Whig (now Republican) party, and my father was not unknown in the councils of the State and nation, his character, social and political, the index of my own, and I was raised to follow in the path.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient,

ABNER P. LACOCK.

Judge Agnew's Lecture.

The Lecture of Judge Agnew at Whitehall, on Tuesday evening, [illegible] last, on the subject of the Federal Constitution as a state [illegible] was [illegible] The house was [illegible] though many [illegible] in very inclement weather. The [illegible] was unfavorable to a public speaker. An hour and three quarters was occupied in the delivery. Yet the audience did not exhibit the least symptom of weariness, and seemed to leave the house reluctantly at the close. We shall not attempt to give anything like a synopsis as it could not be done without mutilation. Let it suffice to say that the people expected a candid and liberal lecture and they were not disappointed. Everything was made so perspicuous that none need be misled. No politician of any party, could take exceptions to a single sentence. The known ability and candor of the [illegible] prepared the minds of the people for a master-piece of composition, but even the highest anticipations [illegible] his most ardent admirers were more than realized. He gave such information as all who love their country more than party, are thirsting for, and he will be gratefully remembered for it. The audience unanimously requested a copy to be sent to the President of the United States, and another for publication in pamphlet form. We are afraid the Judge will not accede to the request, but hope he may be induced to. We know of nothing that could be published, which would do more good to the nation.—New Castle Courant.

Vicksburg being Bombarded.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 23.—A special Memphis dispatch, dated Saturday, furnishes advices from Vicksburg to the 18th. It says that active hostilities against Vicksburg commenced on that day. The mortar boats were towed into position and opened fire. The effect of our shots not known. The firing was responded to by three batteries, when our position was found to be too much exposed for effective operations, and it was changed. The bombardment was then renewed.

[The above news makes the report which comes by way of Murfreesboro, and which was transmitted by Gen. ROSECRANS, to the effect that a rebel officer had admitted the capture of Vicksburg, much more probable.—We hope that Vicksburg is really captured, although the news is too good, too astonishing and too unexpected to place implicit reliance in. We will look with anxiety for the next reports.]

THE GRAND ARMY OF THE POTOMAC. — The Richmond Enquirer of yesterday has the following dated Charleston, February 19: The following proclamation of General Beauregard will appear in the papers to-morrow.

Headquarters Department of South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, Feb. 18. — It has become my solemn duty to inform the authorities and citizens of Charleston and Savannah, that the movements of the enemy's fleet indicate an early land and naval attack upon one or both cities, and to urge that persons unable to take an active part in the struggle shall retire.

It is hoped, however, that this temporary separation of some of you from your homes will be made without alarm or undue haste. Thus showing that the only feeling which animates you in this hour of supreme trial is, the right of being able to participate in the defense of your homes, your altars and the graves of your kindred Carolinians and Georgians. The hour is great to prove your country's worth; all able bodied men, from the seaboard to the mountains, rush to arms. Be not too exacting in the choice of weapons. Pikes and scythes are fine for exterminating your enemies, and shovels for protecting your firesides. To arms fellow-citizens! Come to share with us our glorious brilliant success or our honorable death. G. T. BEAUREGARD, Gen'l Comd'g.

Great preparations for the expected fight are being rapidly perfected — the troops and people are calm and confident. The Enquirer's leader says: France has been no intention or pretension of intention to mediate at the instance of France. The South wants no French mediation while hoping to go on.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. — The Chamber of Commerce to-day adopted a strong resolution against the wrongs which the British Government has allowed to be inflicted upon her commerce in the West Indies and colonial ports in allowing the pirate Alabama to be fitted out. They also adopted resolutions against issuing letters of marque to the Alabama, Florida and other piratical cruisers. Also a memorial to the Secretary of the Navy for the construction of further defences of New York harbor.

DIED — At his residence in Freedom, Beaver Co., Feb. 11th, 1863, JAS. McCONNELL, Esq., aged about 60 years.

Death has again made inroads into our community, and taken the Old Man full of years. He rests now his head from his labors. For near 25 years he was a member of the M. E. Church. He was a man for the times, and filled the place well. May those who follow him in Heaven. K.

IMPORTANT TO FEMALES.

DR. CHEESEMAN'S PILLS

THE combination of ingredients in these Pills are the result of a long and extensive practice. They are mild in their operation, and certain in correcting all irregularities, painful menstruations, removing all obstructions, whether from cold or otherwise, headache, pain in the side, palpitation of the heart, whites, all nervous affections, fatigue, hysterics, pain in the back and limbs, etc., disturbed sleep, which arise from interruption of nature.

Dr. Cheeseman's Pills
